BIOGRAPHY:

Amelia "Chita" Roberts Fry was born in Oklahoma in 1925. She joined the new and innovative Regional Oral History Office (ROHO) at the University of California-Berkeley and went on to become influential in the development of the newly rediscovered practice of oral history. After completing several interview projects documenting California history, she conceived a project focused on surviving suffragists of the National Woman's Party (NWP). The idea came from a

1961 interview with Sara Bard Field, an NWP stalwart. Fry sought out and persuaded a reluctant Alice Paul to give an extensive interview and also interviewed Paul lieutenant Mabel Vernon and others. These interviews became collectively known as the Suffragists Oral History Project (SOHP); all are available in a searchable format online at <http://bancroft.berkeley.edu/ROHO/projects/suffragist/>

Fry received a book contract for a biography of Alice Paul around 1980 and spent the remaining years of her life researching the life of Alice Paul, both in America and abroad. Fry generously shared her research with other historians working on similar projects and regularly appeared at conferences to give papers based on her research. By 2005, however, Fry's health was failing and she turned over her research materials and chapter drafts to J.D. Zahniser. Alice Paul: Claiming Power was published by Oxford University Press in 2014; sadly, Fry had died in 2009. Amelia Fry's three sons donated the research materials compiled in the process of writing the biography to the Alice Paul Institute.

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

The bulk of the Fry Collection consists of material related to the personal history and suffrage activism of Alice Paul; four boxes contain post-1920 material. The collection includes two file boxes of interviews Amelia Fry completed with friends, colleagues, and relatives of Alice Paul; some interviews have been transcribed and Fry kept notes on others. A transcript of the extensive 1971-2 interview with Alice Paul is included in the collection. Also included are transcripts of 1970s-era Alice Paul interviews done by Robert Gallagher, Midge McKenzie, and others; also included are transcripts of interviews with AP associates such as Elsie Hill and Rebecca Reyher.

Documents in the collection primarily consist of photocopies of materials in the National Woman's Party Papers (Library of Congress), the Alice Paul Papers (Schlesinger Library), and other collections; these include personal and NWP correspondence, genealogical materials, financial records, medical records, photographs, press clippings and NWP and World Woman's Party documents. The collection includes a small number of original documents from the NWPP and what appear to be original medical records from Alice Paul's residence in the Greenleaf Nursing Home in Moorestown, NJ, 1975-77. Several folders contain original documents and press clippings related to the Equal Rights Amendment, 1970-82. The collection also includes original correspondence and documents given Fry by Hazel Hunkins Hallinan; some documents in the Hallinan collection unrelated to Alice Paul were given to the Schlesinger Library for addition to their Hallinan Papers.

The Fry Collection holds biographical information about Amelia Fry and photocopies or originals of her published and unpublished work.

Folder titles were created by the archivist as was the arrangement of the files. The arrangement is mostly chronological. Personal correspondence and documents of Alice Paul (AP) are separate from materials related to her work.

The collection is arranged in eight series:

Series A: Amelia Roberts Fry biographical information and writings (3 folders)

Series I: Alice Paul (AP) personal and family history, 1800-1912 (113 folders)

These folders include genealogical research into the Paul and Parry families, notably family trees; printed material related to Alice Paul's education; her freshman year college diary; theses from the New York School of Philanthropy and the University of Pennsylvania; school/college transcripts; correspondence, notably AP's letters from England, 1907-1910; press clippings from America and abroad.

Some material covers the history of Philadelphia area Quakers and the history of Moorestown, NJ and its Quaker community, also correspondence between Quaker historian Margaret Hope Bacon and Amelia Fry.

The folders also include available transcripts from interviews with AP relatives and school friends as well as their correspondence with Amelia Fry.

Other materials related to AP's personal life are located in Series IV.

Series II. Congressional Union and National Woman's Party Records, 1913-1920 (219 folders)

Series II primarily consists of photocopies from the NWPP correspondence records and some from membership, financial, prison, executive committee, and press records; there is one folder of NWP biographies as well.

Supplementing NWPP records are selected materials from the Records of the National American Woman Suffrage Association (NAWSA), the Woman's Journal and the Woodrow Wilson Papers.

Series III. National Woman's Party, World Woman's Party and other post-1920s records (94 folders)

Series III is an uneven collection of documents relating to NWP and WWP activities in the post-1920 era. Material on the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) begins in the 1920s but documents are sparse until the 1960s. Press clippings are numerous in the 1920s, less so in the 30s-50s, with many more included beginning in the 1960s, particularly on the progress of the ERA.

The 1920s folders hold mostly NWP correspondence, but letters from other collections, including the Helen Hunt West, Lucia Grimes, and Mary Eastwood Papers, are interleaved. Three folders of correspondence are not interleaved with NWP letters: one holds selected material from the Jane Norman Smith Papers relating to her interaction with AP and the NWP. Also in two separate folders are documents from the Mary Anderson Papers relating to her interaction with the NWP, 1920-1950.

Much of the 1930s materials consists of official documents from NWP efforts, including folders on the ERA, work with the League of Nations, the International Labour Office, and the League's Women's Committee on Nationality. Included is material from the League's Committee of Experts on the Status of Women. Notable in this period is a diary kept by Amy Ransome, who travelled with AP to the 1937 League of Nations conference. The creation of the World Woman's Party is adequately documented with letters and other papers. Three folders include correspondence related to AP's efforts with feminist war refugees and her later correspondence with them; one folder includes Fry's interviews with one refugee and a related individual. Several folders contain material related to AP associates in 1930s Geneva.

1940s material includes one folder each of NWP (original documents), WWP correspondence, ERA documents and press clippings. One folder provides information about AP's work at the United Nations in this period. Other folders include material from the Katharine A. Norris Papers and the Carl Hayden Papers, both AP associates. Three folders hold Fry notes on her interviews with other AP associates, Winona McGuire, Evelyn Samras Judge, and Ernestine Powell. The interviews themselves are in File Box 3.

The 1950s folders contain NWP and WWP correspondence and documents as well as ERA documents and period press clippings. One folder concerns AP's work at the United Nations and includes a letter from Eleanor Roosevelt disdaining the NWP. Correspondence between AP and Meta Heller is held in one folder and Fry notes about her interview with NWP employee Annette Tripiciano comprise another folder; the interview tape/CD is in File Box 3.

1960s folders also contain NWP and ERA correspondence and documents. Materials related to the UN Commission on the Status of Women comprise one folder; the U.S. Commission documents comprise another folder. Documents relating to Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act are included in one folder. Fry interviewed AP associate Barbara Ireton and a folder includes interview notes and correspondence with Fry. Fry also interviewed Belmont House resident Jan Simko. Again, the interview tapes/CDs are in File Box 3.

The 1970s folders include NWP and ERA correspondence, documents, and press clippings, primarily. AP correspondence is ERA-related. The collection of original press clippings is excellent for this era. Folders also include Fry notes and correspondence related to her interviews with Meta Grace Keebler; Letha Mae Glover; Mrs. Butler Franklin; Nellie Gray; and Connie Scott. A partial transcript of Fry's interview with Peg Edwards is included. The taped interviews are in File Box 3.

Series IV. Oral histories, memoirs and biographical information (80 folders)

Fry's association with other oral historians resulted in her holding transcripts from a number of interviews with Alice Paul completed by others in the 1960s and 1970s. Transcripts from interviews by Robert Gallagher, Marjorie Nelson, Midge McKenzie, Joan Hoff-Wilson and Edward King are included. Other folders contain transcripts of Fry's interviews with Rebecca Reyher and Hazel Hallinan, both part of the SOHP project as are two brief memoirs about Belmont House life in the 1960s. An editing transcript of the 1971-72 Fry interview with Alice Paul is also included here.

Biographical information on Fry associates comprises one box of materials. Some files are the result of research into that person's papers, e.g. Doris Stevens.

Series V. Alice Paul personal records, 1920-1977 (14 folders)

This series includes a handful of AP personal letters to and from family and associates, 1920-death. Most of the material collected relates to AP's final years, when concern about her finances and health mounted. There is an excellent collection of articles about AP. One folder documents Fry's attempts to get help for AP and there is correspondence about where AP's papers would be housed. Another folder consists of apparently original AP medical records from her final years.

Series VI. Photographs (7 folders)

This series contains photocopies of little-seen photos and also photographic prints.

Series VII. Interview Tapes

Amelia Fry made copies of her 1972 oral history with Alice Paul. A reel-to-reel and cassette copy are included here. API has purchased the audio files of the 1972 oral history and a transcript of the interview is available in this collection and online.

Amelia Fry recorded interviews with a number of Alice Paul classmates and relatives in the 1980s; these tapes await transfer to CD format. The transcripts for these interviews are included in Series I.

Donald Paul, Alice Paul's nephew and sole heir, recorded conversations with Paul in the last years of her life. Some of the conversations include other people. These conversations have not been transferred to CD or transcribed.

Amelia Fry recorded interviews with a number of post-1920 Paul associates. These tapes await transfer to CD format. Some transcripts and Fry notes are included in Series III and IV.
